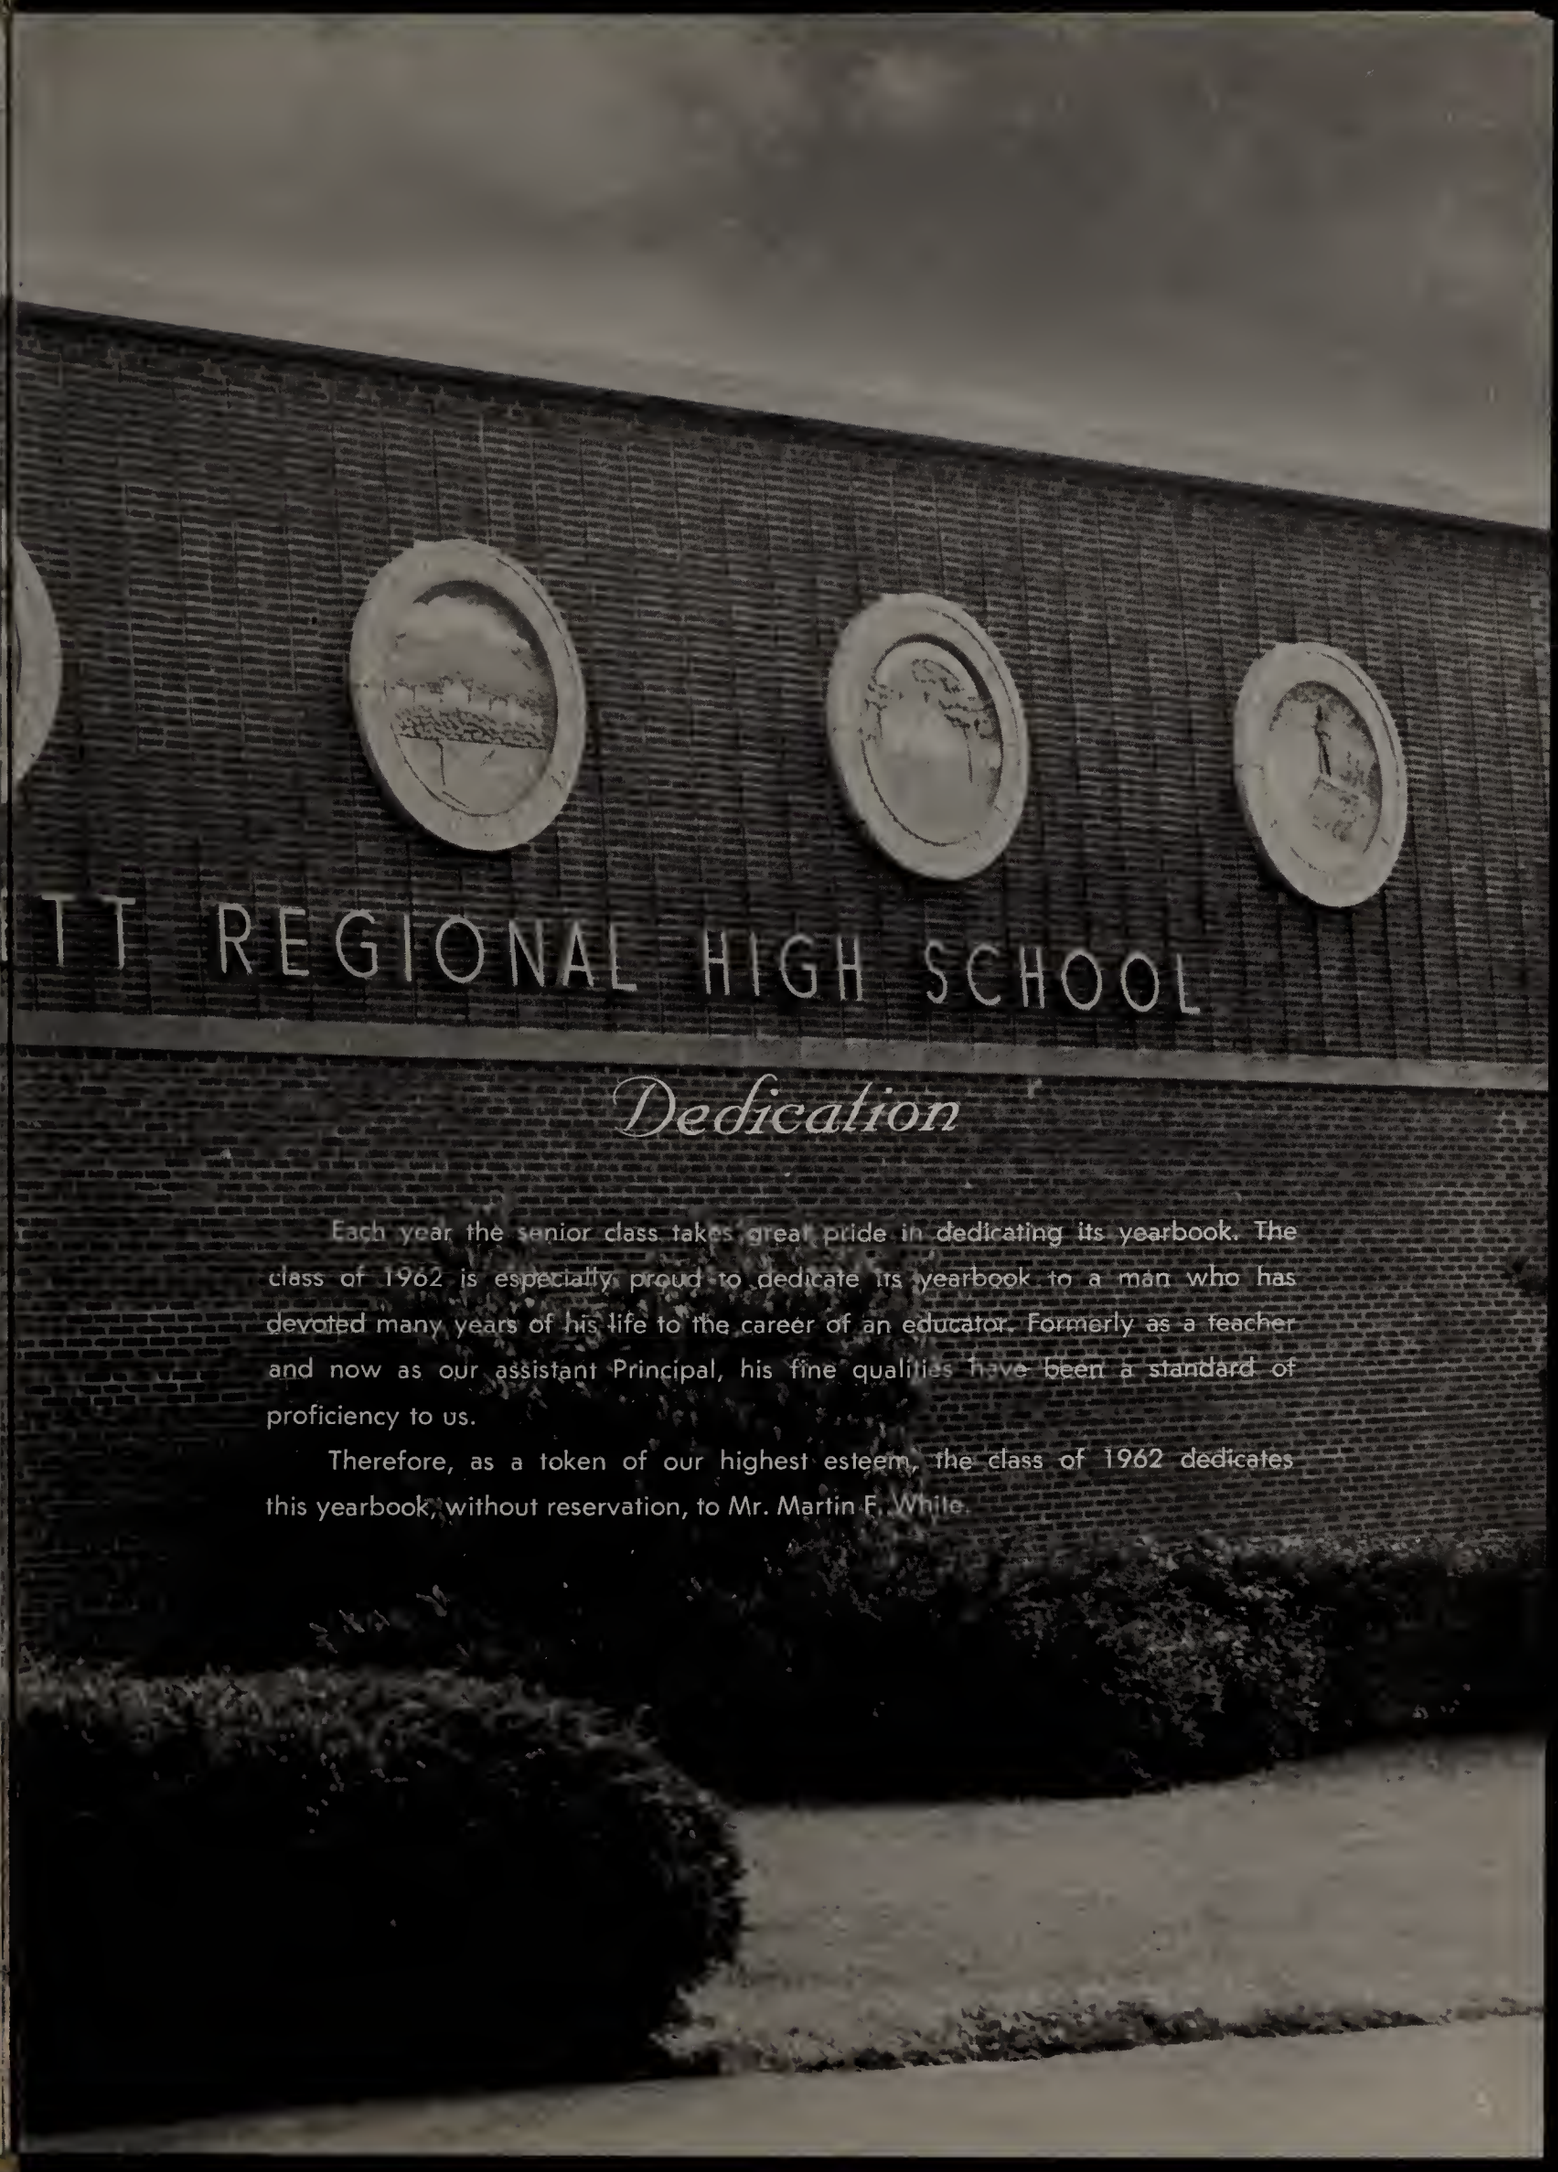
MR. MARTIN F. WHITE



Dedication

Each year the senior class takes great pride in dedicating its yearbook. The class of 1962 is especially proud to dedicate its yearbook to a man who has devoted many years of his life to the career of an educator. Formerly as a teacher and now as our assistant Principal, his fine qualities have been a standard of proficiency to us.

Therefore, as a token of our highest esteem, the class of 1962 dedicates this yearbook, without reservation, to Mr. Martin F. White.

MR. NEAL T. SKILLINGS

PRINCIPAL

To the Members of the Class of 1962:

As you rapidly approach the end of your high school career, I hope you all are enjoying a feeling of satisfaction with your accomplishments over the past four years here at Wachusett. You have attended an excellent secondary school, but merely attending classes will not bring you an education. If you have been faithful in your daily attendance; if you have worked conscientiously with your teachers to improve your mind; if you have participated in a variety of school activities; if you have helped to further school spirit by being present at its contests with other schools; if you have developed a social "savoir-faire" by attending dances, plays, concerts and the like; then, you may justly feel proud that you have completed a high school career which will be of great value to you whatever you may do in the future.

My very best wishes for your continued success in the years ahead.

Very truly yours,

Neal T. Skillings

GUIDANCE

To the Members of the Class of 1962:

We in the Guidance Department have followed your progress year by year. Your failures have saddened us and your successes have delighted us. We now join you in the exciting anticipation of future plans.

Please keep us informed of your progress beyond high school. Our interest in your certainly does not stop with graduation. Our services and facilities are always available to you.

May you find happiness in your future.

SUPERINTENDENT

Dr. Chalres L. Bowlby
Superintendent of Schools

"Over the fireplace in the lounge of a small western college, is carved this legend, 'Who would kindle another must himself glow.' Glow! that is the word. To glow means to give light and warmth; not light only, for that can be cold intellectualism; not warmth only, for that can be sentimentality. To glow means to exercise the energy of mind and heart in one integrated endeavor to arouse understanding and appreciation in others for those things that we hold in high regard. This the teacher can do; this no machine can do."

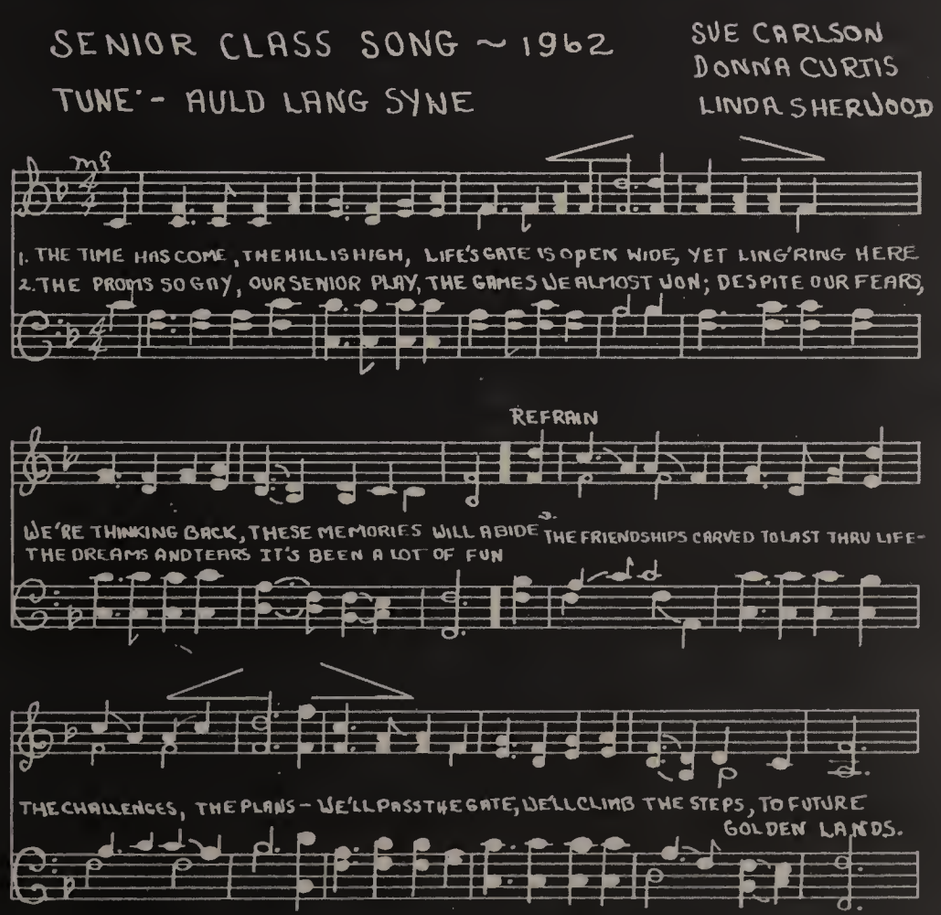
CLASS SONG



HISTORY OF THE

The time is July 14, 2062. Work has begun this day on the seventeenth multibillion dollar addition to the Wachusett Regional High School in Holden, Massachusetts. This school is world famous for its many innovations. Many years ago, its immense size brought about the first complete monorail system on the North American Continent to transport its students from place to place, such as the two mile trip from Guidance to the General Office. It has a round-the-clock ambulance service for speeding ailing students to the Nurse's office. Pink passes have long given way to round trip tickets, and it has become necessary to use a helicopter to get from the locker rooms to the athletic field. Lunch lines have become so long that CARE packages are sent to the students in D lunch. However, the most astonishing thing about this school was the accidental discovery of a Time Capsule which was unearthed by the hungry jaws of a Duppy Steamshovel during construction of the seventeenth addition. Enclosed in this capsule was the record of the greatest class ever to graduate from this institution, the class of 1962. The following is a transcript of this all-important document, which has been called the Rosetta Stone of modern times.

"We, the class of 1962, began our Freshman year as promising, but nervous students. We started the year off right by electing Edward Paquette as President, Nancy Schofield as Vice-President, Beverly Johnson as Secretary, Lana Ericson as Treasurer, and Susan Carlson, Paul Stacy, Janet Wyatt, and Nancy Jones as Student Council members.

How we ever managed to have so much trouble finding our way around, no one will ever know, or admit, anyway. Through the halls came the familiar sounds "You mean this is the GIRLS' locker room . . . Oh, yes, I guess it is!," "Pass? Pink slip? Duh.", and finally the mellifluous voices of our cheerleaders, Gail Robertson, Joan Nielson, and Barbara Fiske.

Our class was represented in all of the school sports; the band, the glee club, and the newly established Joe Berg Science Seminar. Elected to the first May Court were Lana Ericson and Roseanne Jameson.

So concluded our humble, but promising beginning.

On the first day of our glorious, unparalled Spohomore year, we met one another with cries of "Aren't the Freshmen little this year!"

We were ready to continue illuminating the pages of Wachusett's history with our greatness.

Again our President was Ned Paquette. Joan Nielson served as Vice-President, Beverly Johnson, Secretary, and Lana Ericson, Treasurer. Our Student Council representatives were Sue Carlson, Nancy Jones, Janet Wyatt, and June Field. All eight led us in the noble tradition to which we were accustomed.

That year we received the first printed issue of the Echo. We watched our football team win a few games, and we joined everything from the speech club to the Photography Club. In the fall, Phil Smith and Bill Heinold represented us on the football team. With snow came basketball, and Bill Ames was the only underclassman on the Varsity team. Ah! Then came spring, and trampling over all the fresh new grass were our trackmen Roger Knipe, Dick Grandberg, Sam Lund, and Bill Heinold.

Spring also meant Showboat, and we all got busy selling "Bonds for Democracy" for our foreign exchange program. We elected two of our many lovely classmates, Sue Martin and Nancy Gladys, to the May Court.

Soon the year came to an end, and we looked forward to the time when we would be unequalled upperclassmen.

We shone more radiantly than ever when we became Juniors. Despite her chopped-up bankings, piles of cement and bricks, uprooted trees, and generally messy appearance, good old Wachusett looked better than ever, now that we were upperclassmen. To lead us through this important year were our class officers: President; Ned Paquette, Vice-President; Nancy Jones, Secretary; Linda Sherwood, and Treasurer; Elaine Koskela, and our Student Council members; June Field, Donna Curtis, and Janet Wyatt. That was the year of our "perfect" football record and the birth of the pep squad which was led by cheerleaders Barbara Fiske, Gail Robertson, and Joan Nielson.

CLASS OF 1962

Of course we joined clubs, and for a change, we started to run them. We had officers in the Speech Club, Current Affairs Club, F. F. A., Nurses' Club, F. T. A., and Band. And don't forget that without Glee Club members Sue Lorfing, Mary Chandler, Judi Webber, Marilou Prentice, Peggy MacCollum, Alan Murray, and John Yates, "The Green Pastures" would have turned to brown. All the usual kids were back in sports again, and that year we added Dick Edmond, Gerry Nelson, Billy Swenson, Bob LaPrade, and John Lawrence to our football team (Hem-hem). Jeff Bailey and Tom Goodwin joined the Varsity Basketball Squad, and hitting the homers on the baseball team were Russ Temple, Tom Morrison, and Chris Bice. Running their hearts out for our ever-superior track team that year were Larry Lambert, Leon Beaulieu, and Norman Maki.

Ann Belanger and Phyllis Hermanson edited the better than ever Echo. In fact, every editor of the Echo that year was a Junior. We all took sides in the Presidential campaign that fall, and who can forget all the trampled Nixon buttons on December 9? Donald Whittemore came back that spring from the National Science Fair in Kanas City with a fourth prize in Chemistry. At the same time, our showmen were earnestly working on Showboat's production of "Captains Outrageous," and the familiar expressions "Tick me off" and "Beahzy" echoed through the halls.

Finally, the perfect ending of a perfect year for a more than perfect class was our Junior Prom, "Temple Gardens," highlighted by dragons and pagodas, and the crowning of the Queen, Janet Wyatt.

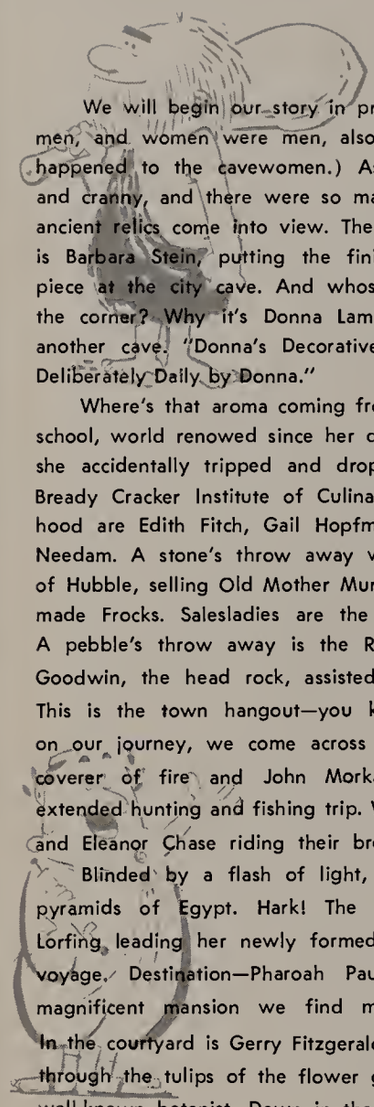
When we became Seniors, we really took over the place. Our new President was Bill Heinold, ably assisted by Jim Heaney as Vice-President, Linda Sherwood as Secretary, and Elaine Koskela as Treasurer. On the Student Council were Janet Wyatt, President; Bill Ames, Donna Curtis, and June Field.

Dick Fay and Phyllis Hermanson were chosen editors of our yearbook. Seniors went to all the clubs' heads. Gail Robertson was President of the F.T.A. Edla Holm and Dick Carlson led the French Club. Marilyn Roman presided over the Latin Club. Spokesman for the Speech Club was Carol Chandler, and making the headlines for the Echo were Eugene Ahlfors and Edla Holm. Barbara Fiske was elected captain of the cheerleaders and was aided by Donna Curtis, and Joan Nielson, who was rather hoarse after four years of cheering. Louise Parker was once again our drum majorette. Twirling with her were Marilou Prentice, Donna Eastman, and Cathy Olson.

One of the highlights of the year was our Senior play, "The Skin of Our Teeth." Through the hub-bub of dinosaurs, mammoths, ice, and floods, were heard the voices of our stars Bruce McNutt, Barbara Keaveny, Sharon Manley, David Martin, Steve Lofgren and Eleanor Chase. Thanks to our directors, Mr. Barker and Barbara Stein, and the long-spent hours of our entire class, the play was a huge success and a memorable experience for all.

Everybody was back on all the teams, and under our leadership, Wachusett Regional High School saw the greatest year it ever had, led by the greatest class it ever had—the class of '62!

HISTORY REWRITTEN



We will begin our story in prehistoric times when men were men, and women were men, also. (We always wondered what happened to the cavewomen.) As we peer behind every nook and cranny, and there were so many of them in those days, the ancient relics come into view. The first creative soul encountered is Barbara Stein, putting the finishing touches on her masterpiece at the city cave. And whose truck is that coming around the corner? Why it's Donna Lambert's. She's off to redecorate another cave. "Donna's Decorative Dynasty of Decorating Done Deliberately Daily by Donna."

Where's that aroma coming from? It's Cecelia Rugg's cooking school, world renowed since her discovery of drop cookies when she accidentally tripped and dropped a batch. Teachers at the Bready Cracker Institute of Culinary Arts in the same neighborhood are Edith Fitch, Gail Hopfmann, Lynda Greene, and Betty Needam. A stone's throw away we find the fashionable House of Hubble, selling Old Mother Murial Hubbard's Handsome Homemade Frocks. Salesladies are the Ollila twins, Sue and Sandy. A pebble's throw away is the Rock 'n Roll Club run by Tom Goodwin, the head rock, assisted by Bob Siart, the head roll. This is the town hangout—you know, like Jenny's. Continuing on our journey, we come across Howard Blum, the famed discoverer of fire and John Morkavitch, coming back from an extended hunting and fishing trip. We are passed by Judy De Vries and Eleanor Chase riding their brontosauri (or is it uss'es).

Blinded by a flash of light, we find ourselves among the pyramids of Egypt. Hark! The pounding of hoofs! It's Sue Lorfing leading her newly formed camel caravan on its maiden voyage. Destination—Pharoah Paul Stacy's palace. Inside this magnificent mansion we find many distinguished personages. In the courtyard is Gerry Fitzgerald checking the sundial. Tripping through the tulips of the flower garden is Robert Clouthier, that well-known botanist. Down in the gaily lit cellars are the happy little mummy-wrappers: Diane Peterson, Donna Peterson, and Beverly Dewey. We leave the palace to soak up some local color, and stop to observe the construction of a new pyramid directed by Dick Morse and Bob McCarthy.

We hail a Sphinxmobile and take a Nile ferry across to the Fertile Crescent. Down-shifting into the first corner ahead of the pack is Craig Zender, master of the Ferrari Testa Rosa. And there goes Richard Carlson, who has recently been discharged from the hospital after a very grave accident. He has been trying to invent the arch. However, they have been falling in on him left and right, and now he has nothing left but fallen arches, and black and blue marks (and you know how easily he bruises). Before we leave the Fertile Crescent, we should briefly mention perhaps the world's most noted star-gazer, Carol Chandler.

We transcend time and space and find ourselves in Golden Greece. In Athens on the Acropolis is the ivory statue of Ellen Henson, the spirit of Athens. She was chosen for this honor because she is 99 and 44/100% pure, and she floats, too. On a distant knoll is the pig iron statue of Phil Smith, the spirit of Sparta. He was chosen because he is only 56/100 of 1% pure, and he doesn't float! Standing in the market place is Gary Fessler giving a firey oration. He is a great fan of Plato, although he doesn't know why. Also in the market place is John "Euclid" Yates, discoverer of geometry. He is better known to his friends as "Eucky" Yates.

There is a commotion going on at the other end of the square. A torch sticking up from the ground makes us think that maybe the Olympic Games are in progress, and they are. Sam Lund stands proudly on a pedestal and is dripping with laurel wreathes. You see, he has just come in first in the cross-country race. Leon Beulieu was a close second, and Pat Fanning was third. Everyone was asking the question, "What makes Fanning run?" Jerry Nelson has won the weight lifting contest, and, my!, my!, Sharon White has won the discus throw.

We turn the pages of history and find ourselves in Rome. Tsk, tsk, bad news. We learn from a citizen that the Emperor, Roseanne "Caesar" Jameson, has just been assassinated. Oh well, that's Rome for you. The leader of the conspiracy was Bev "Brutus" Wolfe, better known as "B.B." Knifing along with "B. B." were Dawn McManus, Pat Norton, and Nancy Cuplis, all prominent Romans. That night we attended two splendid orgies. The first one was a "Twisting" orgy. Well, well, there are Judi Webber and Gail Robertson writhing in their togas. Reluctantly we leave this perspiring sight and attend the second orgy, an eating orgy. The same old crowd of Senators and Patricians are there a [illegible]!, so it would have been pretty dull except for Robert Martin, who gave an awe inspiring demonstration on various ways to eat grapes.

As everyone knows, Rome fell in 476 A. D. due to barbaric invasions. The person mainly responsible for this mess was Errold Moody, better know as Attila the Hun. Nasty boy! But be that as it may, Rome did fall, and the world was plunged into the Dark Ages. These were the days of knights, such as Richard, and his famous knights of the free form table. Alas! There is the scream of a fair damsel in distress. In one flashing leap, Knight Knight is aboard his brave stallion, Lolita, and is off to save the lady. After the hot work of slaying a few dragons, he finally rescues her. Do you know who she turned out to be? None other than Carol Day. (You know, "Knight and Day.")

In 1066, William "The Conqueror" Fage of France defeated Burnham at the battle of Hastings. Too bad, Ed, but better luck next time. Some years later, that tyrannical tyrant, King John Farrel signed the Magna Carta. France and England were having one of their semi-annual feuds at this time, and if it hadn't been for Gerry "d'Arc" Franzen, France might today be a colony of England. Well done, Gerry. Towards the end of the Middle Ages there was a rise of learning and reading. A fine example of this were the many newspapers. In the City Room of the Gutenberg Daily Times, we find Ute Reinholz working as assistant to Marcia Slongwhite, who always prints.

Time marches on and we find ourselves in Spain in 1492, right in the middle of the Age of Exploration. Kenny "Columbus" Berggren discovered America in this year. Abroad his ship was Bruce Ekengren. Bruce was somewhat of a trouble maker. He thought the world was flat and tried to incite mutiny among the crew members. As fate would have it, he turned out to be the first one to sight land. When they finally reached shore, it was Leonard Eccleston who planted the flag. Talk about a green thumb! Also in the Age of Exploration was Paul "Magellan" Cooney who made the famed voyage around the world. The sailors with him, who managed to survive scurvy and various other plagues, were Ernie Bickford, Bill Burzenski, Bob Gordon, Dick Granberg, and Ken Grenier.

THE CLASS OF 1962

15BB! The defeat of the Spanish Armada! SPLASH!

This brings us into Modern History. We receive an invitation to dinner from the royal palace signed by Queen Elizabeth The First. It's amazing how much she resembles Betty Zoppo!

Around this time Peter "The Great" Packard ruled in Russia. He enjoyed a long and prosperous reign until Catherine "The Greater" Kaminski came along. Well, that's life.

Time marches on to July 4, 1776, in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. There is much activity going on outside Independence Hall. At the door Elaine Warpula is passing out "I Dig George" buttons. On the street corner is Gerry Sullivan selling Betsy Ross Sweat Shirts, with "Sweat Along With Betsy" embroidered on the back. Virginia Steinke has become an overnight success with her revolutionary invention of the Ben Franklin ball-point quill. Bet you didn't know who else had a hand (and pen) in writing the Declaration of Independence? It was Regina Reidy, Edith Ash, Judy Black, and Janet Lupaczyk. Because of their handy work (and pen-y work), they got us into a big mess called the Revolutionary War. In this war Doug Abramson made his fame as a cannoneer with his trusty (and rusty) bellmouth cannon "Ole Ronnie" Stockwell. Some famous commanders on the American line were General Warren Hyson, and Lt. Robert Wilson. John Woodcock never got past Private. Francis Quinn, who never seems to win, surrendered at Yorktown in place of General Cornwallis, who was indisposed at the moment.

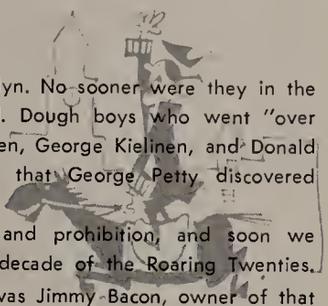
It was at this time that the pharmaceutical firm of Nelson and Nelson came into being. Presidents of the company were David and Paul. They manufactured band-aids for use during the war, and baby powder for the post war baby boom.

The War of 1B12 was a war, and it took place in 1B12. It wasn't much of a war, just an ordinary, everyday type war, but a few people did stand out. Captain John Wentworth, commander of the Good Ship Lollipop, went down with his ship, mainly because he didn't know it was sinking. Others who fought valiantly at sea were Bos 'n Don Taylor, Midshipman Larry Martelli, and First Mate Richard Haskins.

Dateline 1B53! Commodore Richard Perry arrives in Tokyo, and eventually opens up trade relations with the Far East. How about that!

Trouble was brewing in the United States in the 1B50's, and by 1B61 we found ourselves in a Civil War. Nurses who performed bravely on the battle field were Mary Allen, Carol Frost, Linda Hanson, Barbara Warrington and Susan Read. Away from the hub-bub of the war, on her quiet southern plantation "Boll-Weevil Acres," was that lovely Southern belle, li'l Ruthie Baggs. Paul Bonin worked as a slave driver here, and between mint julips, Bruce Daigneau headed the Anti-Rotten Cotton Committee. Beverly Dewey, that well-known cook, also worked on "Boll Weevil Acres." People came from miles around to taste her square inch pound cake which had more bounce to the ounce (16 to be exact). Contrary to popular belief, it was not Eli Whitney who invented the cotton gin, but Robert Bruinsma. At the end of the war it was our own fiery Abolitionist, Dave van-Leeuwen, who read the Emancipation Proclamation.

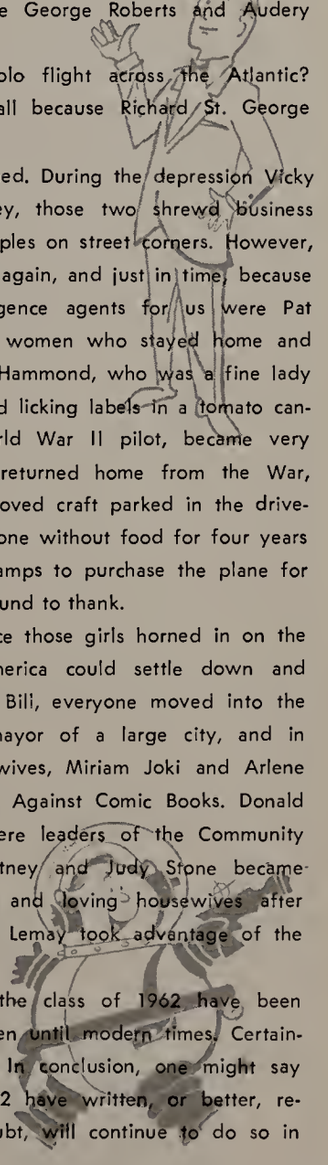
The rest of the 1B00's passed peacefully enough, and now we find ourselves at Kitty Hawk, North Carolina, on a foggy day in 1903. Everybody thinks it was the Wright brothers who flew that day for the first time, but it wasn't. No siree, it was the Crawford girls, Bev and Carolyn. No sooner were they in the air, than World War One started. Dough boys who went "over there" were Alan Caney, Bill Haven, George Kielinen, and Donald Lindberg. It was in this period that George Petty discovered germ warfare.



With armistice came peace and prohibition, and soon we were plunged into that mad-cap decade of the Roaring Twenties. One of the maddest caps of all was Jimmy Bacon, owner of that notorious Chicago speakeasy, Jimmy's Den, located on Iniquity Street. Flappers who went there every night to display their bobbed hair, short skirts, and cupid's bow mouths were Linda Granger, Verna Tucker, Barbara Strong, Mary McEwen, and Irene Partridge. Entertainers there were the King's Tongue Trio which included Paul Hirst, Warren Jordon, and Bob Luuko. Of course, there were gangs in this era. Two of the most infamous were those of Joe LaHair and Jean Jummonville. Their respective molls were "Sharpie" Sharon Manley and "Bunny" Spencer. This was the age of dance marathons and of course we had to attend one. Winners were Kevin Reidy and Milly Landers who danced non-stop for a record 146 hours, 26 minutes and 9 seconds before they collapsed. In second place were Dave Root and Judy Oberist. A close third were George Roberts and Audery Keyman.

Oh! Remember Lindberg's solo flight across the Atlantic? Well it really wasn't a solo at all because Richard St. George was a stow-away.

In '29 the stock market crashed. During the depression Vicky Murray and Carol Anne Morrissey, those two shrewd business women made a fortune selling apples on street corners. However, the New Deal put us on our feet again, and just in time, because World War II broke out. Intelligence agents for us were Pat Hedlund and Virginia Olson. The women who stayed home and took over men's jobs were Carol Hammond, who was a fine lady riveter, and Carol Lupienski worked licking labels in a tomato canning factory. Peter Mack, a World War II pilot, became very attached to his B-29. When he returned home from the War, he was astonished to find his beloved craft parked in the driveway. It seems that his wife had gone without food for four years in order to save enough ration stamps to purchase the plane for him. Unfortunately, she was not around to thank.



At last, for the first time since those girls horned in on the Declaration of Independence, America could settle down and think of herself. Under the G. I. Bill, everyone moved into the suburbs. John Robbins became mayor of a large city, and in suburbia, those two active housewives, Miriam Joki and Arlene Wood headed the Mothers' March Against Comic Books. Donald Carlson and Alexander Gentile were leaders of the Community Betterment Association. Judy Whitney and Judy Stone became working women during the day and loving housewives after five P.M. Always a ball-of-fire, Ed Lemay took advantage of the opportunity to sell fall-out shelters.

So you see, members from the class of 1962 have been in history from the time of cavemen until modern times. Certainly no other class can match this. In conclusion, one might say that members of the class of 1962 have written, or better, rewritten history, and without a doubt, will continue to do so in the future.

THE LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

We, the outstanding, perfect, prodigious, eminent, amiable, suave, esteemed, mature, and conceited class of 1962, leave Wachusett Regional High School in a condition it has never been left in before.

We have spent four glorious years here, throwing paper clips, pencils, and people, picking up broken milk bottles, pilfering pink passes, and pegging grapes.

You Juniors will have to face the incredible task of living up to our unparalleled scholastic reputation. And so to you we say, "Rots o' Ruck."

To the Sophomores we leave a completed school, something we never had.

To the Freshmen we leave three years in which to grow up, although we know they'll need at least ten.

To the incoming Freshmen all we can say is that 129 isn't on the fourth floor.

David Clemence leaves, looking the other way.

Chris Bice leaves his "reeds," to anyone who can play them.

Paul "Huhhh" Lindberg leaves, snapping his fingers.

Judi Webber leaves her dimples to all the flat-faced Juniors.

Barbara Lantz leaves all her shoes to anyone who has enough feet for them.

Dorothy "chomp-chomp" Grensavitch leaves, contented.

Anne Sherwin and Sonny Harrington leave on a pilgrimage to Assumption.

Carron "tee-hee" Friberg leaves her ability to laugh at anything to Chico "What's so funny?" Lemoine.

Shirley Goodwin leaves, flaunting her driver's license, proving if she can get it, anyone can.

Kathy "Plato is too better than Aristotle" Holt leaves her love of intellectual pursuits to Bob "Who's Plato?" Sprague.

Beverly "I'll learn to snowplow yet" Nelson leaves her skiing experiences to Chip "You should see me on those slopes" Fay.

Judy "I speak three languages" Cavanaugh leaves her tongue to the language department.

Bruce Anderson leaves his wardrobe to Ray Le Cuyer, so he can go another year without wearing the same thing twice.

Dwight Bissonnette leaves his abundant growth of hair to the Home Economics Department, so they can braid a rug.

Naughty little Robert Carlson leaves his bad pranks to naughty big Bob Schang.

Mary Jo Cognoni leaves her voice to the Pep Squad.

Linda "cackle-cackle" Crystoff leaves her infectious giggle to Marsha "kickle-kickle" Owen.

Jane Durning leaves her post in the girls' room to Dale Bolack.

Dottie Ellner leaves her beautiful blonde hair, and now she's bald.

Judy Fant would leave her fingers to the typing staff of the Echo, but she needs them.

Linda Harvey leaves her neatness and sweetness to Elaine White.

George Jardine leaves, and he just got back.

Roger Knipe, that well-known traveler, leaves his luggage to Carol Carbone who's got the clothes to fill it all.

Ruth Loff leaves her scorched hair to Kirk Bodwell, another all-time Chemistry great.

Bob "All transistor" Mann leaves his love of radios to John Pearsoll.

Karen Norquist leaves her big brown eyes to Eddie "Mine are always black" Zyst.

Nancy Jones leaves her empty bottle of peroxide to the Science Department.

Jane Allison leaves her clarinet to Tom Hardy, who has all the hot air it takes.

Mary Ballard leaves her artistic droodles to Tom Hawkins, who doesn't need any help.

Robert Barthelmes and Serena Davis leave, together.

Peggy Bigelow and Mary Wheeler leave the General Office in general chaos.

Barbara "I have gray hair" Bowen leaves it to Karen Hendrickson, who hasn't tried that color yet.

Bruce Clark leaves all the blue slips he's collected in the past two years to the General Office.

Richard Fay leaves his jazz records to Phil "Who's Dave Bruback?" Darby.

OF THE CLASS OF 1962

Ken Johnson leaves his pigeons to Dick Munoz, who goes in for chicks of another kind.

Roger Olson leaves his ability at making excuses to Harry "Who me?" Dudley.

Berty "Hello, dear" Mosher leaves her beautiful smile to the Sophomore girls, who ought to try smiling sometime.

Beverly "I must have forgotten something today" Johnson leaves, looking for it.

Walter "I'm a poet" Donway leaves his literary accomplishments to Jerry Bottcher, who just loves poetry.

Carol "No, I'm not a beatnik" Webster leaves her artistic ways to Cordie Turner.

Mary Chandler leaves for Europe, finally.

Ann-Marie Farley leaves her position as Aunt Polly to anyone who wants to write letters to herself.

Brent Williams leaves singing "I want a girl, just like the girl that married dear old Dad."

Marilou Prentice leaves in the general direction of the French.

Bill Swenson leaves his blushing abilities to Bob Scott, who's got a lot to blush about.

Dick "I'm in the Science Seminar" Mason leaves his fantastic chemistry project, for a price.

Richard Masters leaves his million used flash bulbs from the class of '61 to Kathy Toomey, who's Brownie hasn't been working well lately.

Judy Meattey leaves her saddle and bridle to Dave Hultin, who's got the bowed legs.

Judy Hall leaves her neatness to Donna Gadde, who's also neat.

George Legacy leaves his ability to argue at anything to Betsy "Who's arguing?" Yates.

Don "I work in a supermarket" Loomis leaves a million unused bags to Glen Parks, so he can fight his way out of them.

Francis Golas leaves with a bomb under his arm.

Charlie Wesley leaves with everything he can get his hands on.

Bruce Swenson leaves his experiences in Maine to anybody who will listen.

Ken Sweeney leaves his receding hairline to anyone with a hairy forehead.

Sandy "I'm a bookkeeper" Wreschinsky leaves 1000 broken pencils to Andy Reid, who's always losing them, one way or another.

Roger "I'm not a pilgrim" Williams leaves all the corny jokes to anybody else with a famous name.

Nancy Weston leaves a few tips on keeping quiet to Jane "I didn't say anything" Morrisey.

Sandy Thompson leaves "Around the Mountain" to anybody who wants to see all his friends in the gossip column.

Sally Lundquist leaves her beautiful eyes to the lady who gives the eye test, insisting that she can see the little red line.

Audrey Holdridge leaves her exuberance to John "Yeah, I figured that would happen" Adams.

Nancy Lundgren leaves all her fan club membership cards to Susan "Ooh, I love James Garner" Burns.

Wayne "I know what I'm talking about" Smith leaves his genius IQ to the faculty.

Barbara "Doesn't the salami go on top of the cheese" Werkowski leaves a pile of Italian Clubs to the Cafeteria Staff.

Susan "Perpetual motion" Rantala leaves her efficient ways to Rusty Warren, who seems to be doing all right on his own.

Fred Rumford leaves his nickname to Miss Pitcher.

Donald Trotter, who's a kook, refuses to leave anything.

Pat Dakota refuses to leave.

Patty Norton leaves her love of cats to Ed "woof woof" Skog.

Ruth Noonan leaves her famous seat at Herb's to Marcia Holman, who seems to prefer Harry's.

Maureen "I'm one of the boys" Sprague leaves her position to Eileen Lorenz, who'd love to be surrounded by all those boys.
